CASE STUDY

Year End Accounting

About Year End Accounting...

Year End Accounting in Leeds is one of the only accountancy practices in the North of England specialising in the entertainment and leisure industry.

They offer a tailored service for each individual client, whether it's weekly bookkeeping, checking the takings or more traditional accounting, and charge a fixed fee for their service.

After taking some time out from a large national accountancy firm where he specialised in entertainment, Ian Bavill decided to go it alone and start Year End Accounting.

His aim was to create a modern practice that listened to it's clients and gave them the service they asked for. As the majority of his clients are pubs, clubs and restaurants, his practice is quite informal without the pinstripe suits. Ian likes to offer a personal service and become an essential asset to his clients' businesses.

Liquid & Year End Accounting...

Ian was introduced to Liquid by a potential client who was already using and loving the web-based software and who was looking for an accountant who was willing to work with them and give it a try. He was pleasantly surprised to find a useful tool that worked for both him and his clients.

I would never recommend for a client to get Sage. It's too expensive and only good for accountants or big companies. With Liquid I can show them how to put invoices on themselves and cut down on my work. So at the end of the year, it's not a mess.

I would probably look at putting everyone on it for bookkeeping. If someone is quite computer-literate, and they want to take control back from their accountant or reduce the burden of their bookkeeping, then Liquid is ideal.

Start-ups want to know what's going on at all times. They have a 'hand-to-mouth' existence and it's hard to build up cash reserves. There are lots of new business owners sat at home at 11pm who are natural worriers and just want to be able to check their figures. With Liquid, they don't have to wait for office hours or for their accountant.

I would definitely recommend Liquid to any small business who needs invoicing, VAT and petty cash. It's spot on for any business within a year or two of start-up.

For clients who want to do their own bookkeeping, Liquid is much easier. They can do it, and let me know when they've finished, and I can log-in and have a look.

The basic set-up is much like Sage and works perfectly well.
